DREYFUSS PUTS THE BAN ON INVASIONS TO CUBA

PITTSBURGH OWNER REFUSES TO PERMIT ANY OF HIS MEN TO PLAY ON ISLAND.

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 31.-No barnstorming trips in the tropics for the Pirate players. This is the rule Barncy Dreyfuss has made, and explains why Wagner, Hendrix, Byrne and O'Toole did not go to Cuba to play ball this winter. In explaining his reasons Dreyfuss says: "When a club picks up a young man pays him a good salary, carries him along at an expense that amounts into thousands and develops him into a real ball-player, the owner of that club should have something to say about the risks he takes of ruining his health. These Cuban trips are not good aterson back at center, Quina and for any ball player. During the sea-Mike Mitchell of Cincinnati went barnstorming a year ago in Cuba. Mitchell is a grand player, but his batting was away off during the season. Grover Cleveland Alexander and George Chalmers, Philadelphia National league pitchers, played in Cuba last winter. Not until late in the season did either show his last-year's form. There are numerous other instances that might be recounted in arguing against letting ballplayers go into the tropics to play. Tom O'Brien, who was with he kind of a game he has, he has us in 1859, went on a trip to Cuba. He orse than useless and Pontius was one of the most promising young men I ever knew. He was seized with what seemed seasickness, but he never the Sank than he does at right got over it. Since O'Brien died I have trips, and I'm opposed to seeing ball-

MANY RECORDS IN PAST SEASON

Year Remarkable For Brilliant Performances on Diamond

The 1912 baseball season, which mere sensations than any other before in the history of the game. First came the sensational winning streak of Rube Marquard, the star southpaw of the Glants. Next to this was the winning streak of the Nationals, the main surprise of the American league race during the campaign in the Bar. Johnson organization, These were notable features, but there were others which can also be reckoned, although they be not as important.

There were the winning streaks of loe Wood and Walter Johnson: the great record made by the Red Sox in setting a new A. L. record for games won. All these things happened and were mentioned many times, but there are still some remaining almost antold and they are records that are well worth being proud of. But such is the case, some are noticed, others are not, for the simple reason they do not seem so important, but are well worth mentioning during the winter season just the same.
